THE STAFF AND THE PREMISES. There never was a Solicitors Journal office (not in my day anyway). The reality was a few computer terminals for the editor, deputy editor and others on one floor in a publisher's office in Lambs Conduit Street. At that stage it was owned by FT Law & Tax and then moved on to Sweet & Maxwell.

GOODBYE TO THE SOLICITORS JOURNAL: PERSONAL MEMORIES

The title 'solicitor' was queried as the "lynchpin" of current legal services regulation this week during a public meeting on the future of regulation for the profession.
